You would only use 127.0.0.1 in a listen statement if you wanted to restrict acceptance of connections to the local host loop back interface only. Removal of duplicate Listen statement as stated by many is the more typical solution. If you had duplicates, on *:443, then changing one to use 127.0.0.1 shouldn't really have made a difference as the other *:443 would still try and bind same port ...
